COURSE LEARNING OUTCOMES

On completion of this course students will be able to identify and assess:

- The instruments through which EU institutions structure their dialogue with outside stakeholders, ranging from consultation mechanisms to transparency related measures;
- The consequences of this dialogue for different kinds of legitimacy;
- The limitations of interest organisations as sources of legitimacy;
- Comparative perspectives on the role of interest and advocacy groups in political systems; and the ways in which the properties of the EU political system, and the architecture of EU decision making, structures the character and modus operandi of EU interest representation;
- The political behaviour and mobilisation of different interest constituencies and the factors which explain them;
- Who wins? i.e. the ways in which different types of underlying politics inform different distributions of costs and benefits in legislative proposals;
- The use made of interest organisations by EU political institutions to achieve their goals;
- The impact of direct participatory measures (e.g. the European Citizens' Initiative) on the EU system of interest representation;
- The role of social movements in politicising European public spaces;
- The extent to which public deliberation between interest and advocacy groups and EU institutions results in a 'participatory democracy' involving popular control of EU decision making.

RECOMMENDED PREPARATION

Greenwood, J (2017) Interest Representation in the European Union, Palgrave Macmillan

TEACHING METHOD(S)

Common readings followed by class discussion; case studies with discussion and small group problem-solving elements; work with databases; elective presentations; traditional lectures.

ASSESSMENT METHOD AND CRITERIA

Written examination: 2 hours (55% weighting)

Essay or presentation (30% weighting)
Quality of contributions on intranet forum (15% weighting).

Each item is accompanied by written criteria used for assessment.

Retake examinations, i.e. exams passed in the second examination session, will have the same format as those taken during the first exam session. The only exception concerns oral exams, which are replaced in the second exam session by written exams. When a student takes an examination during the second session, the final mark for the course is based solely on the result of the retake examination. No other element of evaluation which would have been taken into consideration in the calculation of the final mark during the first examination session will be considered in the second session. (art. 28 of the Specific Provisions)

COURSE CONTENTS

The course provides an analysis of the systemic role of interest representation in the EU political system provided by an academic, and may be taken in conjunction with the workshop 'EU lobbying in practice' provided by practitioners. The content is described in the 'course learning outcomes' section.

COURSE MATERIALS (readings and other learning resources/tools)

Common readings; case studies; database interrogation, including the European Transparency Register (a database of organisations seeking to influence the public policy of the EU institutions). The course has run continuously since 2004 through annual option choice selections made by students.
